Atlapac achieves SQF Certification

Atlapac Corporation, a leading manufacturer of bags, pouches and flexible packaging, has successfully achieved SQF (Safe Quality Food) Level 2 Certification.

SQF is a HACCP (Hazard Analysis Critical Control Points) based food safety program recognized by GFSI (Global Food Safety Initiative). SQF certification is a food safety standard that is comparable to BRC (British Retail Consortium) and FSSC 22000 (Food Safety System Certification). The SQF certification program ensures that products have passed thorough international standards for food quality and safety. SQF is recognized by retailers and foodservice providers around the world who require a rigorous, credible food safety management system.

“Atlapac’s SQF Level 2 Certification further demonstrates our commitment to exceed the existing basic food safety and quality expectations. Each step throughout our various processes engages our employees in the food safety culture. This certification reinforces to our customers that we are committed to being a reliable packaging supplier within our various supply chains,” says Paul Unrue, President at Atlapac Corporation.

Atlapac has 30 quality and food safety programs in place, the following are some of the programs: Document Control, Management Audits/ Monthly Audits, Good Manufacturing Practices, Pest Control, Chemical Control, Storage and Handling, Training, Quality Control, Customer Quality/Complaint Management, Traceability, Hold and Release Protocol, Glass and Brittle Plastics, Sanitation and Maintenance. Atlapac is committed to making food safe products for all customers. With food safety as a priority, Atlapac’s customers know there is no risk in using Atlapac products for in-process manufacturing or as a finished consumer package.

Atlapac consists of a team of Packaging Professionals. The manufacturing facility in Ohio converts a million packages a day.
